Short title and commencement

MEMORANDUM ON THE OBJECTS OF THE ACADEMY OF SCIENCE OF SOUTH AFRICA BILL, 2001

Background

1. In October 1989, a need was identified for the establishment of an Academy that is truly representative of all scientific disciplines (natural science, social science, humanities, economic science, engineering, health science and agricultural sciences) within all cultural communities. As a result thereof the Academy of Science of South Africa (ASSAF) has now been established with support and representation from a wide variety of scientists from all scientific disciplines and communities.

2. ASSAF currently functions as a voluntary association under its own constitution that was accepted and approved by its founding members at an inaugural meeting held on 22 February 1996. ASSAF differs from the Academies that existed prior to 1996 in that the opinions it provides will be truly representative of the broad scientific community of this country. ASSAF enjoys the support of both the “Suid-Afrikaanse Akademie vir Wetenskap en Kuns” and the Royal Society of South Africa.

Contents of Bill

3. The Bill provides for the establishment of ASSAF as an autonomous body corporate with perpetual succession and legal personality. The Minister of Arts, Culture, Science and Technology will utilise ASSAF to provide the Department with advice and perform specific functions like entering into agreements with peer organisations in other countries. ASSAF will be the only science academy recognised by Government. The Suid-Afrikaanse Akademie vir Wetenskap en Kuns Act, 1959 which established the “Suid-Afrikaanse Akademie vir Wetenskap en Kuns” is repealed.

4. It is regarded as prudent that ASSAF be established under separate legislation in order to promote openness and transparency. In so doing ASSAF will become known to the public at large. The legislative process will provide an opportunity for public debate on the desirability and future course of ASSAF. As a body corporate with perpetual succession and legal personality sanctioned by an Act of Parliament, ASSAF will enjoy international acceptance and credibility, as its constitution and objects cannot be changed at will. The objects of ASSAF are aimed at ensuring that individuals who have made significant contributions to science, act in concert and across all disciplines in providing direction to the scientific community and at the facilitation of appropriate action in relation to the collective needs, threats, opportunities and challenges of all South Africans.

5. ASSAF differs from existing bodies such as the “Suid-Afrikaanse Akademie vir Wetenskap en Kuns”, the Royal Society of South Africa and the Engineering Academy of South Africa in that it serves all language and cultural groups in all disciplines of science (natural science, social science, humanities, economic science, engineering, health science and agricultural sciences). The “Suid-Afrikaanse Akademie vir Wetenskap en Kuns” is the only similar body that is currently recognised by law. It is intended to recognise only one science academy, which has an overarching scope of activity.

6. ASSAF acts as an autonomous body, while its members are elected on the basis of the highest level of scientific thinking and knowledge and of a significant contribution in the service of the nation as a whole. ASSAF acts as an independent instrument enabling the scientific community to make sufficient contributions to policy advisory or implementation bodies, in a coordinated and representative manner. ASSAF establishes national and international links with similar organisations in order to foster the exchange of information and ideas in the interest of the country and all its people.

Parliamentary procedure

The Department and the State Law Advisers are of the opinion that the Bill must be dealt with in accordance with the procedure established by section 75 of the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996 (Act No. 108 of 1996) since it contains no provision to which the procedure set out in section 74 or 76 of the Constitution applies.
